

LAWS DO NOT FIND REASON FOR DIVORCE

Freedom of Women Not Hasty Marriage Contributing Factor

JUDGE HOFFMAN

Greatest Menace to Children is in Lack of Home Life

That one of the great causes of the increase in divorces and broken homes is heightened social and economic status of women was the statement made by Judge Charles W. Hoffman, Judge of the Court of Domestic Relations in Cincinnati, Ohio in his lecture "The Failure of the Home, its Cause and Cure."

A few years ago when the husband was the head of the household there was very little friction the wife being content to follow her husband, but in these days when both may be wage earners and occupy an equal position in social and economic life there is greater independence and consequent friction.

This however is merely a contributing factor according to the speaker, in the great majority of cases there are more fundamental reasons. About seventy per cent of the divorces are psychopathical cases many are feeble-minded and totally unfitted by carrying on the duties attendant on married life. Cruelty often consists in habits formed in childhood. Such cases will always be with us or until such abnormal people are prevented by law from marrying. The sexual impulses are so strong that even normal people cannot resist them, how then can we expect the abnormal to do so. And these people, he said also have children who in time will appear in the domestic relations court for nature's is quantity not quality production.

Contrary to common belief it is found that one per cent of the broken homes result from hasty marriages, there is always some exceptional and unusual cause.

In spite of the great number of cases tried each year we are still in ignorance of the true reason for the desire on the part of the couple for quick and easy release. A questionnaire is given to each applicant that comes into Judge Hoffman's court but it is found that little can be learned from them.

The law regarding marriage relations, Judge Hoffman claims is very unsatisfactory, and the existing law is not easily adopted to meet the conditions as they arise. No provision is made in the law for the children, and it would be interesting to know what became of the 75000 children of the 165000 homes dissolved in 1923. The children of such unhappy marriages frequently start on the road to delinquency and pauperism but the law takes no notice of them.

There has been nothing original in the methods of treating child delinquency since the middle ages.

Judge Hoffman gave a very lucid account of the way in which they were attempting to deal with the matter in his court in Cincinnati. The court has been organized on quite new lines, and a record is kept in all cases which appear in public or semi-public records, thus it necessary a record of the persons concerned can easily be looked up at any time. If necessary children are sent to the hospital or to psychopathic wards for treatment. Those who are not in hospitals are looked after by big brother or big sister organizations and by the Public Schools; only 6 children from Cincinnati are in state industrial schools and these 6 should never be released as they are all incapable of becoming good citizens. In 75 per cent of the cases there is a spontaneous cure.

There is no greater menace to children than a broken home," declared the speaker, and often abnormal behaviour on the part of the child has its source in the home. The parents are censured but in many cases they are quite incapable of meeting the demands imposed on them, indeed frequently they themselves were subject to the same influences in childhood. Often the child in public school does poorly in his studies is accused of stupidity and laziness, develops an inferiority complex and finally does not care what becomes of him. Then he starts

Straightened Out At Last

Why does a cat land right side up when she is dropped. Professor Magnus of Utrecht, Holland, has just completed an experiment for the purpose of finding out an answer to the question that was as dark a mystery as a cat's other eight lives. His conclusion is, according to the Daily Mirror, that a cat doesn't have to know consciously how to land right.

In the course of the experiment to determine this unusual sense of a cat, Professor Magnus put the forebrain of a pussy (where consciousness resides) out of commission by an operation, and then dropped the cat up side down. Each time that this was done the cat instantly righted as easily as though she had full possession of her faculties.

his career of delinquency and becomes a problem for the juvenile courts.

In spite of his experience in the Divorce Court Judge Hoffman is a firm believer in monogamy and says it is to endure.

When questioned the Judge declared that the facility with which a divorce can be obtained has little to do with the frequency of broken homes. The homes were broken before the intervention of the law and the severing of the legal tie is of little consequence. The law is too much inclined to confuse effect with cause, it cannot regulate until it strikes at the cause.

MR. DAWSON'S DEATH IS LOSS TO MCGILL

Trusted Servant of University Passed Away Last Monday

By the death of Mr. R. Dawson which occurred at his home at 134 Mansfield Street on Monday last, McGill University has lost a valuable and trusted servant. Appointed mechanic in the Department of Physiology in 1920 after a varied round of experience in the construction of apparatus of precision. Mr. Dawson was particularly identified with the modernising of the laboratory equipment of the Physiology Department, in which he soon assumed a position of trust. A large part of the physiology teaching equipment was made or assembled in his workshop, itself planned and appointed after his own design, while various pieces of special apparatus both in Physiology and in other departments attest to his skill and care in his work.

All the motor and reducing-gear machinery of the Physiology Department, the specially fitted basses and carrying rods of the Sherrington-Stirling drums, the special sets of frog-heart perfusion apparatus, the Lucas troughs, the horizontal micrographs, the Burdon-Sanderson stereographs, the long-paper kymographs of the mammalian room so well known to students of physiology, were made by Mr. Dawson. Under his daily attention the complicated apparatus and motor-driven laboratories ran without a hitch, and experienced visitors to the department have commented upon the well kept and ready-for-work condition of the materials of which he was in charge.

His past experience in an astronomical workshop and his special knowledge of microscope construction and of photography were of particular service to workers in the Physiology Department. Medical students who had frequent occasion to consult him or to watch him at work were attracted by his courtesy and charm of manner, while his ready willingness, his cheerful and obliging disposition were even better known to the staff of the department. By his various colleagues he was liked and respected. Yesterday the flag on the Arts Building was flown at half-mast in his honour. To his sorrowing widow and family of two daughters and two sons (one a student of Medicine at McGill) the sincere sympathy of the student and teaching body of the University is tendered.

TRYOUTS FOR REVUE TO BE HELD TODAY

Actors and Actresses to be Definitely Picked

PRICE EXPECTED

Producer is Returning Shortly to Continue Work For Revue

The first tryout for the Red and White Revue will be held in the ball-room of the Union at 7 o'clock sharp to-night.

It is very important that all those who have been chosen should be on hand this evening as the actors have to be decided upon immediately, and others will have to be selected if any of the aspirants do not turn up. Also it is imperative that the various members learn their parts and become accustomed to them as early as possible, so that the practices may be held with as little delay as possible.

It is expected that Sid Pierce who is producing the show this year will return shortly from the mountains where he has been recovering from a slight illness, and his coming will undoubtedly add new vigour to the practices.

The following ladies and gentlemen are asked to report to-night at 7 o'clock sharp in the ball-room of the Union:—

Miss Fogg
Miss Eve
Mrs. Campbell
B. Bell

ALL DANCERS WILL BE OUT NEXT FRIDAY

Last Informal Will be Held at Union

CROSS' ORCHESTRA

Special Innovations Have Been Added for Final Event

Terpsichore will hold full court at the best informal which is being held in the Union on Friday night. All arrangements have left in the hands of the goddess of the dance.

The informal dances have always been a most important feature in the Social activities at the University, and this year they have been a very marked success. The executive in charge of arrangements hope to make this final informal the best of the year, and special features and added attractions are being planned for the evening.

The event will be staged as have all the others this year, in the ball-room of the Union which will be uniquely decorated for the occasion.

The important task of engaging an orchestra for the evening has been satisfactorily settled, and Fred Gross and his musicians will be on hand for the occasion. This orchestra is well-known to all undergraduates at McGill, and they will do much to enliven the evening; they will supply jazz, modernized baroque rhythm par excellence.

The plan of having a buffet supper which was attempted at the last informal will not be in effect. The executive agreed that an ordinary "sit-down" supper is much more satisfactory to all concerned, and this form of refreshment the weary dancers will be employed on Friday. It is probable that there will be only one sitting for supper but if there is an unusually large demand for tickets a second sitting will be arranged. If this is the case there will be two more Supper Extras on the evening's programme, but otherwise the order of dances will be as follows:—

Extra
1—Fox Trot
2—Fox Trot
3—Fox Trot
4—Waltz
5—Fox Trot
6—Fox Trot
7—Fox Trot

Extra

PSYCHOLOGISTS WILL NOT MEET TO-NIGHT

The Daily has learned that Dr. C. E. Kellogg will be unable to address the meeting of the Psychological Society which was scheduled for to-night. The meeting has therefore been cancelled.

Dr. Kellogg, who was to have addressed the Society on "Mental Tests, their Nature, Scope and Validity" is unable to be present, owing to a serious illness in his family.

The executive of the Society announce the regular March meeting will be held as scheduled on the first Wednesday of next month.

INTERMEDIATES PLAY IN CITY BASKETBALL

The Intermediate A and B teams play here to-day in the City and District Basketball League. The A team is scheduled to meet the Central Y.M.C.A. at Mo'ison Hall in what should prove to be a very interesting contest. This match will be followed by one between the B team, which stands a very fair chance of capturing the league honours in its division, and a team representing Victoria Rifles.

LIBERAL LEADER DISCUSSES PLANS

John P. Humphrey Interviewed by Daily Reporter

"The present unemployment problem is the most important issue facing Canada to-day", said John P. Humphrey, newly elected leader of the Opposition in the Mock Parliament at McGill, to a reporter who interviewed him to-day in regard to his plans and policy for the coming session.

In regard to the immediate plans of the party, he said:

"There will be a caucus of the Liberal party in the reading room at the Union at three o'clock this afternoon. Matters of extreme importance to the welfare and prosperity of the Dominion will be discussed. I wish all the members of the party, to be present if they possibly can. In order that they may become acquainted with the plans of the party in connection with these matters and also that the party may form a definite policy and platform."

The Hon. Mr. Lindsay Webster, member for St. Lambert, will be present and will report the results of his tour of the Dominion's industrial centers, during which time he has been making a study of the attitude of Canadian workmen towards the present unemployment crisis.

The Liberal party considers the present unemployment problem to be the most important issue facing Canada to-day. The situation is to a large extent due to the fact that the financial and commercial interests nothing has been done to protect the Canadian workman. The high tariffs, now in existence, protect the manufacturers against American competition and enable them to exact high prices for their merchandise. On the other hand the "open door" immigration policy supplies the manufacturer with unlimited supplies of cheap labor. This is without doubt unfair. It will therefore be the policy of the Liberal party to give more protection to the working classes and acting upon this principle a bill will be introduced next session restricting immigration in a like manner to that in vogue in the United States.

As it is very probable that the present Reform government will find it necessary to go to the country after the next session and that a general election will prove unfavourable to them the caucus will discuss a program to be carried out in the case of the Liberal party being returned to power. This program will include all the Maritime question, the Bank Act, Ocean and inland freight and will especially stress the need of a gradual reduction in the tariff so that the Dominion may be put on a more stable basis."

"MCGILL NIGHT" AT SYNAGOGUE

Maccabean Circle to Provide Programme at Shaar Hashomayim To-night

"McGill Night" will be celebrated at the Shaar Hashomayim Synagogue, Kensington Avenue, Westmont, this evening, when the Young People's Society of the Congregation will be host to the members of the Maccabean Circle. The principal item on the programme is a debate on the topic, "Resolved: that the war and its consequences have done more harm than good to the Jewish people."

The affirmative of this argument will be upheld by Bernard Cohen, president of the Maccabean Circle, and Miss S. Lazarowitz, while the speakers for the negative are N. Reich and Miss R. Rudy. Gordon Levy who was to have been one of the speakers for the affirmative is suffering an indisposition and is consequently unable to attend.

"McGill Night" at the Shaar Hashomayim is an annual affair and has in previous years, drawn large crowds. The evening's programme completed by several musical numbers, contributed by members of the circle and the Young People's Society. It is also customary for informal dancing to conclude the evening's entertainment. The Congregation Shaar Hashomayim has issued an invitation to all members of the Maccabean Circle, as well as to all others interested, to attend the function, which is scheduled to commence at eight-thirty. The Synagogue is reached by taking the Windsor car westbound and disembarking at Kensington Avenue.

MCGILL BAND TO BANQUET THIS EVENING

Rooters Band Will Broadcast From Northern Electric

NEW LEADER

Final Practice Will be Held at 5.15 This Afternoon

The Rooters' Band enters the limelight to-night in the role of radio entertainers. After a special supper which is being served to the Band in the Grill Room of the Union, the musicians will journey to the broadcasting studio of the Northern Electric Co. in the Keefer Building.

This is the first time the Red and White Band has been introduced to Canadians and Americans through the ether, and consequently they are planning to make their debut a notable event.

Basil McLean, President of the Students' Council, has been taking great interest in the band this year, and will be present at the dinner to-night.

After the banquet a new leader for the coming year will be chosen to succeed Bob Logan, the present band master to whom no small share of the credit for the success of the musicians this year is due.

This evening's practice has been called for 5.15 p.m. and the band master asks that all members attend.

MCGILL BOXER ON CANADIAN TEAM

Don Marshall Will Fight in Boston To-morrow

Don Marshall, McGill 160 lb boxer has been picked to represent Canada in the team of five which is being sent to Boston to compete Thursday night in the first International Amateur boxing tournament at Mechanics Hall. The Canadian team will leave to-night and a team representing England is already in Boston.

The American team is composed almost entirely of greater Boston boxers. On the British team is Harry Mitchell, light-heavyweight Olympic team. The Canadian boxer in this class is Ratelle who boxed McLean in the recent McGill Invitational Meet. Gene Brausseau is in charge of the team. The meet is fostered by the N. E. A. A. Y.

Marshall returns to Montreal on Friday and fights again on Saturday afternoon when the M. I. T. boxing team meets McGill in the Union.

BANNER IS GIVEN TO PHARMACISTS

Dr. McLean Speaks on Synthetic Products of Coal Tar

The Pharmaceutical Society met last night in the Assembly room of the New Medical Building, and were presented with a banner by Prof. Muir.

In opening the meeting the President of the Society announced the date of the sleigh drive which is to take place Feb. 25th. He said that after the sleigh drive there would be refreshments and dancing at the New Medical Building. Prof. Muir then presented the Society with the new Pharmacy Banner, his own donation. He gave a short and very appropriate speech regarding his gift. He stated that every organization should have a flag or banner to fight for and uphold. He commented the designer on his excellent taste. The applause following was a true demonstration of the Society's appreciation.

The President then called on Dr. McLean to speak on the Synthetic products of Coal Tar.

Dr. McLean opened his remarks by saying that Coal Tar is considered as the gold mine of chemistry. The derivatives of it being almost innumerable. Many everyday substances such as shoe polish, candles, glycerine, aniline dyes, aspirin (so often taken for headache) and a multitude of other things are all derived from coal tar. Dr. McLean went into the chemistry of some of the most important parts and clearly showed how the different products were built up one from the other. The address was remarkable for the clarity and conciseness of its presentation. After Dr. McLean's address, refreshments were served.

PREPARATION OF SPEECHES IS DESIRED

Consider Subject Before, Is Plea of "Lit"

IMMIGRATION NEXT

Mock Parliament on 17th and Impromptu Speaking on March 2

The problem of the Mock Parliament and a consideration of the criticisms levelled at it from various sources was taken up yesterday afternoon when the executive of the Literary and Debating society met in conjunction with the leaders of the "Mock" to discuss the question. It was decided to make efforts to assure better preparation on the part of those who would speak from the parliament floor. It was felt that more careful preparation on the part of all members in regard to the subject, for discussion, would in every case not only improve the parliament but would make for a better and keener debate. The next session will be held Tuesday, February 17.

The last few sessions of the parliament have witnessed men taking the floor and speaking without sufficient knowledge of the subject. The plea of the executive and leaders of both parties is that all who would speak on the floor of these house should exert greater effort beforehand and bring well considered views and present them at the parliament, to the best of the speaker's ability. It was generally felt that open debates with privileges for all students to speak should continue rather than have special speakers at each parliament who would occupy all the time.

There was a brief discussion of the division problem, and it was decided that the matter lies entirely in the hands of the party leaders. It is understood that they will name special men to do all necessary whipping and the confusion at the sessions would in that way, be eliminated.

The Mock Parliament is to assemble again on the 17th. Since the immigration problem is at present being widely discussed it was decided to bring the matter up in the house. The debate thus will center around some aspect of immigration. Some of McGill's most prominent orators will be present and as on previous occasions the debate will be open to all students.

The executive is completing arrangements with the University of Montreal for a debate in the near future to take the form of the Mock Parliament. The impromptu speaking contest has been set for March 2.

MCGILL SENIORS TO MEET DARTMOUTH

Hockey Teams Will Play Here on Thursday

McGill again meets its old rival Dartmouth on Thursday the 12th, this time on local ice.

The Dartmouth team journeys to Montreal Wednesday, in search of revenge of their former defeat at Red and White hands. On Jan. 2nd, the McGill Hockey team met Dartmouth at Boston, where they defeated the Green 2 to 1. Since that date, Dartmouth has only been vanquished once and that once at the hands of the strong Yale sextette. Hence McGill's former victory may be taken as a good omen for their future games.

Of the invaders, Captain Everett, Manser, and Mills are all second year Varsity hockey men. Consequently, the McGill team will have a stiff fight on their hands when they meet their American cousins Thursday. The local team will remain practically unchanged, the same line-up being used as in the last game.

The teams will line-up as follows:—

DARTMOUTH		MCGILL
Goals		Goals
Anthony		Cameron
Defence		Defence
Hardy		Hayes
Mills		McMann (Capt.)
Centre		Centre
Manser		Mickles
Wing		Wing
(Capt.) Everett		Beil
Fryberger		Abbot
Sheward on Steamship—Your lunch will be up soon, sir.		Seaside Student—Yea, so will my breakfast.

MONTREAL, WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 11, 1925.

COMPLETE FREEDOM

Zona Gale, author of "Faint Perfume", "Miss Lulu Betts" and other novels, and a prominent liberal, was recently interviewed by a reporter of the Harvard "Crimson". Miss Gale expressed herself as being heartily in favour of complete freedom for the student and others, and she was pleased to note that the extension of freedom was daily growing greater.

It is an accepted fact that man has enjoyed more and more freedom during the past few decades, and with the extension of freedom have come great advances in civilization. Inventions, discoveries, improvements, alleviating of conditions and mitigating of sufferings have come as a direct result of the allowing of greater freedom to the ordinary run of the human race.

It is only because the world in general has become, as a whole, better educated in the past few decades, that it has been possible to extend to them certain liberties which they hitherto did not possess. Education has brought freedom, and freedom has brought improvement. And in this matter our Universities serve a double purpose, first, that of guiding up along the lines of study that will benefit us most, and secondly by extending to us as students, the right to govern ourselves and to do as we please as long as we keep within the bounds of law and reason.

At McGill we are particularly fortunate in the amount of liberty accorded us. It is difficult to find a college in which self-government is developed to a higher extent than it is in our own.

If the world has become better, and happier during the past years, it is because her people have been less and less restricted in their actions. The people have been less restricted because they have, through the manifold benefits derived from increased education, been able to apply their newly-found liberty wisely.

CONDENSED COMMENT

Considerable progress has been made within the past few days by the members of the Players Club. On the 19, 20 and 21st of this month the Club will present three plays. Whether the presentations will be successful depends not only upon the cast and producers, who have been working diligently for the past few weeks, but also upon the students, whose support is necessary. Just three hundred seats are available for the performances; this means that only three hundred students are necessary to make it affair a success. The quota of seats should easily be disposed of, considering that an excellent evening's entertainment is being offered at a very low price.

The editors of the McGill Annual report that work is progressing very favourably on their volume. The book this year is to contain many innovations, and is to be larger than any previous volume. The board, which has already reduced the price of the book, is working on a further reduction, in accordance with its policy of putting the book in the hands of as many students as possible. The book is thoroughly representative of all that goes on at the University during the academic year, and is one that every undergraduate should possess.

A Bad Example

But recently the papers have been full of startling disclosures concerning student life at the University of Wisconsin. If half the reports which have been revealed are true, conditions there must be in a deplorable plight. Whether or not "wild life" is getting the best of these college men and women we can not say. But we do know that it won't be long until every reformer in the country will be advocating "down with our colleges and universities; our youths are going to the dogs." Simply because one group or so at a large state university have so far forgotten themselves as to bring discredit, not only upon themselves, but upon their university and their state.

Whether there be truth in the matter or not makes no material difference. Wisconsin has stirred up something which will leave a bad taste in the mouths of many. She is setting a bad example, and, though existing conditions there may not be the fault of the University itself, yet it reflects back upon that institution and she gets blamed for it.

From time to time we have heard of this school and that getting into disrepute, usually through the thoughtlessness of a group of low-brow students who have no care nor pay back to the fair name and good

GOOD SCORES MADE AT REVOLVER SHOOT

The revolver club held an enthusiastic work out in the Highlanders Armouries yesterday. Although although attendance was small, some very creditable targets were turned out. Firing at thirty feet, Wadsworth secured a score of 51 out of a possible 60. Pa'e and Pennel, at the same range, made scores of 41 and 39 respectively.

The club plans to hold "spoon shoots" or trophy contests in the very near future. The executive is also trying to arrange for competitions with various local organizations.

Members have the alternative of providing their own pistols or using those supplied. Though much of the shooting is done with twenty-two any calibre is permissible. Practices are held twice weekly and last ordinarily from five till seven.

reputation their alma mater enjoys. Certainly the great majority of men and women at Wisconsin are not involved in any scandal. And yet the few that are, are casting discredit upon the entire group. Truly, the sins of the few are visited on the heads of the many. It is an unfortunate state of affairs—one which all college men and women will be sorry to hear of.

R.V.C. WINS TWO GAMES FROM Y.W.C.A.

Excellent Combination and Passing Displayed by R.V.C. Teams

FOURTH VICTORY

R.V.C. and M.S.P.E. Will Play Saturday in High School

Last night the R. V. C. Basketball team fought their way to a fourth victory, when they defeated both teams from the Y. W. C. A., by the scores 51-27 and 32-22.

The First Team is steadily improving in style, yesterday showed the best combination of the season. The end to end passing was particularly good and shows the result of constant practice.

On Saturday, Feb. 14th, the R. V. C. and M. S. P. E. teams will play in the Montreal High School Gym. A return match will be played later.

After the starter's whistle in the game between the First Teams last night, the ball went at once to the R. V. C. A. and Miss Patterson scored. Immediately after she scored again, bringing the count up to 4-0.

At this point the work of the centre speeded up, and on a pass from Miss Dunton, Miss Allen made a basket. Miss Allen then scored again on a pass from the jumping centre Miss Ratner. The score then stood 4-1.

During the remainder of the match the shooting of the R. V. C. forwards improved steadily. Miss Perry made three baskets in quick succession, but there was much bunting at the R. V. C. end of the floor. As a result of this Miss Patterson scored for the Y. W. C. but Miss Perry retaliated and brought the count up to 12-6 in favour of R. V. C.

A particularly good piece of combination was seen when Miss Dunton passed the ball to Miss Ratner who in turn passed it on to Miss Allen. The forward then scored twice.

Soon after this Miss Perry netted two more baskets on passes from the centre. Miss Patterson showed up well on long shots.

There were three more goals made by R. V. C. and one more by the Y. W. C. and the first half of the game ended 26-10 for R. V. C.

Miss Perry opened the second half by scoring on a long shot. The play then centered around the Y. basket and Miss Patterson scored.

On a double foul Miss Bartlett made a basket, bringing the score up to 29-13. This was followed by two beautiful shots by Miss Perry and two by Miss Patterson.

At this point Miss Bartlett again made a free throw, following which Miss Patterson scored three times in rapid succession.

The passing was excellent but the Y. W. C. did not seem to be able to hold crowding under the baskets. This interfered with the work of the forwards and accounted for many also tries.

The last few minutes of play saw Perry and Miss Allen each scored for R. V. C. and Miss Patterson gained a basket for the Y. W. C. A.

The score at the end of the game was 51-27 in favor of the Red and White sextette.

The match between the Second Teams was not so fast but the guards of each team were particularly good and worried the forwards considerably. Miss Lawrence from the Y. W. C. scored first with a field goal, and soon afterwards gained a free throw. Miss McMartin then made three baskets with three exceedingly well placed shots and the score stood 6-3 for R. V. C.

By the difficulty the forwards seemed to have in getting free it was evident that the guards were doing their work well. Each defense stuck by

Will Chlorine Be Medicine In Future?

"Have you had your chlorine today?" This statement might become the health criterion of the future.

The expression isn't meant to imply that chlorine gas is to be inhaled in large quantities by everyone. It does mean that there is a possibility that chlorine gas mixed with air will become of practical importance for use in the curing of colds.

In recent numbers of "Literary Digest" and "Review of Reviews", chlorine has been very successfully used in the treatment of respiratory diseases. There have been hundreds of cases treated, with chlorine gas administered directly to the patient or by treating an entire room of people. Of the number treated the cures ran nearly 75 percent, while only 23 percent showed no improvement.

President and Mrs. Coolidge and numerous congressmen are among those successfully cured of colds in this manner. In fact, it is reported that "gas chambers" for the purpose have been installed in a room of congress.

It appears that in the future people will no longer mention such facts as, "I'm going to have a marcel" or, "Wait, while I have a shine." Rather, the only popular thing to say will be, "I'm going after my chlorine treatment." That will be a happy time for when chlorine appears, sniffly noses, watery eyes, and whooping cough will vanish.

her shot through the thickest of the light. Some good passing was displayed but for a time there was no scoring until Miss Chalk made two baskets.

Mrs. Cooney then came back with a field goal and a free shot, and the score was 10-6 for R. V. C.

The Red and White shots then scored alternately until they were interrupted by Miss Lawrence who gained a goal for the Y. on a long shot. At half-time the score was 18-8.

The playing in the second half was rather wild and disorganized at first. Miss Lawrence and Miss Chalk both scored, and a double foul was given but no free throws were made. After the score had been brought up to 23-10 the Y. team seemed to make an extra effort and the forwards made four baskets in a very short time. The score then stood 23-18, and the outcome of the game began to appear very uncertain. In the last few minutes of play the passing was much better than the shooting, as many goals were missed. The final basket was made by Miss McMartin, on a pass from Miss Evers, and the score stood 22-22 for the R. V. C. Second Team.

DIOCESANS DEFEAT WESLEYAN TEAM

Second Half of Theological Basketball League Under Way

The second half of the Basketball schedule of the co-operating Theological Colleges got away to a good start last night when the Wesleyan and Diocesan College teams clashed at Molson Hall. Both teams appeared in good form and made things run from start to finish. The Wesleyans got under way more quickly than their opponents and had run up a score of 8 points to 1 in the first ten minutes. From then on the Diocesans took charge of the play and ended up the first half with a score of 14 to 12. The superiority of the Wesleyan combination was marked in the early part of this period but lost its effect in the latter part.

The beginning of the second half found the Diocesans still going strong the shooting was more accurate and frequent. About the middle of this half the Wesleyan rallied with two baskets in a row but at no time did they equal or lead the score. The last five minutes of play found the Diocesans again on the offensive, and when final time was called the score stood 26-21 for the Diocesans.

Throughout the game the checking was very close and the personal fouls given were too frequent. Duncan and Stuart of the Wesleyans turned in the best exhibitions for their teams. Playing ability was so evenly distributed amongst the Diocesans that no man could be picked for special mention.

Cambridge Men Wreck Theatre

London.—His Majesty's Theatre, one of the finest in London, is almost completely wrecked as the result of a students' riot here following the Oxford-Cambridge football game.

A mob of Cambridge undergraduates, who came to London as a cheering section bombarded the chorus girls with electric bulbs, and when the curtain was lowered, they became angry and broke up chairs, tore the carpets to ribbons with their pocket knives and broke all the mirrors in the theatre. The interior of the place was almost completely demolished.

NO FORWARD PASS IN COLLEGE RUGBY

Motion to Adopt New Rules Defeated

At a meeting of the Canadian Intercollegiate Rugby Union, a proposal to adopt a modified forward pass and to allow a five yard interference rule was defeated.

McGill University, Loyola College and one member of Queens were all in favour of these suggestions on the ground that a sustained offensive by one team against another at all its equal, was of no use, and that the game developed itself into a duel between rival punters.

The movement was however opposed by Varsity, R. M. C. and the other member of Queens. As the necessary two thirds majority was not obtained the motion was defeated. The McGill representatives were Dr. Lorne, C. Montgomery, Brigadier-General Reid, and Major Stuart Forbes.

More Reasons For Going To College

People go to college because their parents don't know any better. Once there they stay because they don't know any better. The others have intelligence and think out at the end of the first quarter realizing the uselessness of prolonging the agony. They start in with the seemingly innocent vices such as booze-hitting and crap-shooting, and before they know it are lured on step by step until at last they find themselves taking part in dramatics, working on humorous publications, or attending chapel; some even become collegiate and refuse to wear garters.

It is against the rules for anyone to be collegiate who does not belong to a fraternity. Now you think we're going to talk about fraternities; we're not; the less said of them, the better. There are many ways of being collegiate. When you see two gentle apparently engaging in a fistie encounter, don't call the police; they are gentle who have not met for three months, and they are giving one another a collegiate greeting. When you see a young girl seated in an inn turning the air blue with smoke breath and cussavoids, remember that she is a sweet, innocent girl and just as shocked as the devil at herself, but she is being collegiate.

But after all, one must admit the advantages of a college education. We once knew a fine young college graduate who dazed his contemporaries, prof. etc., with his brilliance and erudition; he graduated with three degrees and four dollars. And went forth to dazzle the world in like manner. At last a crisis came. He was engaged in an occupation in which the slightest negligence meant the loss of his future, and one morning he over slept, waking at ten minutes until eight. Because he had gone to college and had eight o'clock classes, he was unable to rise, dress, eat his breakfast, and be on the job with his pick in his hands before the whistle blew! —The Brunswickian.

"I heard you were on strike," said Bill to his friend Bert. "I was that," answered Bert. "A strike for what, Bert?" "For shorter hours, Bill." "And did you get them?" "Sure we did, Bill. I'm not working at all now."

A Predicament

By A Foolish Youth

I write this that my brother frosh may take heed and be spared the untold agonies that I have undergone during the past few days.

I have been sadly imposed upon and my faith in human nature, particularly feminine human nature, has been badly shaken. The cause of it all was a girl I picked up—do not misunderstand me, she was skiing—on the mountain last Saturday. She seemed such a nice girl and no gentleman could go by, now could he? and we got a bit acquainted during the afternoon we stopped at the Pines on the way down and she told me to be sure and call her up.

And now I am plunged into the depths of despair. Even as I write my tears dilute the ink in the ink-well. The telephone number she gave me seems to get the morgue. What am I to do?

TO THE RESCUE

Bill Smith and his wife kept a small but flourishing shop in a very remote country place. Every month regularly the man went to the market town to buy goods, for the store while his wife stayed at home, to mind the shop.

On one occasion recently he did his shopping very early and, in consequence, the goods were despatched at once and reached Mrs. Smith before her husband.

Hardly had she set eyes on the packing-cases when she uttered a yell and seizing a hatchet began frantically to open the largest.

"What's the matter," she was asked by an interested customer who was waiting to be served.

Fale and faint, Mrs. Smith pointed to the inscription on the box: "Bill inside."

Public Smoking Outlawed At Vassar College

Legislation has been enacted by the student governing body of Vassar College for Women to the effect that students must not, in public, indulge their habit for smoking. This new law was passed only after much deliberation at a recent meeting of this body. It is believed that this anti-smoking statute is the first of its kind since women acquired the habit of smoking some time before the Roman Empire came into being.

As this action of the Vassar students comes to our notice we are reminded that there are women students in the University. The day is probably not far distant when we will see such legislation enacted on our own campus. Of course, there can be no insinuation that any of the women students of the University indulge in this habit, but it is becoming a general thing in society, and prevention is far better than cure.

Contrary to the popular opinion, smoking among the members of the fair sex is not a recent thing. It is certain that the beautiful inhaled the pleasant weed, and some of our grandmothers sat by the hearth and puffed their pipes. The big question is: Will your sweetheart prefer or Chesterfields?

THE REASON THEY BLUSH

"Huh!" he shouted, after reading the account of the wedding "Always the 'blushing bride'! That's the bunk!"

"Oh, no it isn't," replied the Mrs. sweetly. "Just consider the kind of men women have to marry."

OUT OF REACH

It was rather crowded in Oxford Street and the pavement in front of the world-famous big store was a mass of seething humanity, mostly of the female species.

Amid the throng was a little boy, who ever and anon looked round him, and then set up a tremendous howling. A dear old gentleman happened to be there, and his heart was touched.

"Please, sir," sobbed the boy "I've lost my mother."

"But why didn't you catch hold of her skirts?" inquired the old gentleman sympathetically.

More sobs and then. "I-I couldn't reach 'em."

The Editor,

McGill Daily,

Dear Sir:—I'm writing to thank you for your fine editorial "Judge Not—" in yesterday's "Daily". I certainly feel that the slight to our professors should not be allowed to pass unopposed. Dr. Silberstein probably does not know that some of the professors who lecture to the freshman and sophomore years are noted men such as Dr. Eve, Dr. Rutman, and Dr. Willey, not to mention a number of other great names.

The ideals of "Old McGill" and those of the University of Toronto are identical. Undoubtedly there are great men at the U. of T. and we here are glad of it. Undoubtedly there are truly remarkable courses at the U. of T.
but comparisons are always odious. I for one think that English 2 and History 1 are wonderful courses here.
It was with genuine pleasure that I went day after day last year to listen to professors of these courses—not merely for the knowledge necessary to pass the exams, but for the helpful, almost perceptible compari-sonship of the great authors we studied, and for the problems of life and the duties of citizenship made clear.

I have travelled in three continents. I have always availed myself of any advantage I have had of listening to scholars of literature and to historians. If I had to take another course in English and History and had my choice of teachers, I would unhesitatingly choose the two I had last year. It was a great privilege.

With thanks in advance for your space, I am

nose and throat of patients when sneezing. Other carriers of the disease are pencils which students borrow from each other and insist on sticking them in the mouth.

Dr. Bulce said with a smile, "the exchanging of chewing gum and the eating from one apple by loving couples."

Predisposing factors favorable for the spread of the disease were said to be exposure in damp cold without exercise to warm the blood, sitting in a damp draft, allowing the body to get too warm, vitiated atmosphere and the use of anesthetics. The last many times brings pneumonia.

Dr. Bulce says that one must be ware of the effecting agent if he hopes to steer clear of the epidemic.
Exercise, such as tennis, or track work were suggested as means of cold preventives. When one begins to sneeze then is the time to begin on the cold. One should begin moving around and taking other measures for the prevention immediately.

Dr. Bulce suggests that in the early stages of cold if one will run until he begins to perspire, then rush home and drink two glasses of lemonade, take a hot bath, and go to bed for two days, the cold will disappear.

Breezes Of Boreas

I pulled my hooves from out the hay and shivered in the cold. I knew I'd live to rue this day fore I was very old. For I was going to learn to skate; with Jasper I had made a date and his hands I placed my fate. On him, I said, I'd hold.

He told me that I'd learn real quick to navigate around. He said to me: "There is no trick, nor are the rules profound. One simply stays upon his feet and holds himself as safe and neat as though he walked upon the street and merely tread the ground."

Then Jasper bore me to the ice and launched me boldly out. At first I started going nice and then—I got about. My feet went up into the sky
I landed with a ghastly sigh upon my bruised and battered thigh. J.
Jasper laughed throughout.

"Come on, my boy," he loudly cried

"I'll let you hold me here, and o'er the pond we'll slowly glide and you need have no fear." But when we hit 'bout ninety per and things resembled one vast blur, he let me go —there was a whirr—I landed on my ear!

I sought out Jasper, very grim, and held him like a vice; for when I did not lean on him, I leaned upon the ice. But ever and anon I fell and woke the echoes with my yell and shook the welkin like a bell—I broke rough once or twice.

And now, by all the Forty Fates,
I say in accents strong: "I'll never don a pair of skates—I'll stay where I belong. It seems that I was marked from birth to tread upon old mother earth; I'll dodge the skates for all I'm worth, I'll shun them as a wong!"

Hurry, Hurry,
Hurry.

Mad with activity, ruled by the iron hand of mob psychology how can the college of today foster genius, cherish the artist, inspire the idealist?
Mr. Henry Rood, writing in the February Scribner's would like to know.
And he would like to know, too, what place the modern college would find for Emerson, Poe, Bret Harte, Mark Twain, and their great contemporaries. Being a shrewd observer Mr.
Rood answers his last question as every thoughtful undergraduate could answer it: the college would first force these men "to wear hats and caps of the same style, suits and overcoats of the same cut, collars, ties, shoes of the same pattern," then ostracize them until they were "out" for a team, a glee club, a publication, even brand them as "queer" until they thought like and acted like everybody else, and finally teach them in remaining leisure to dine elegantly, and bridge skillfully.

To the student caught up in the wild whirl of activity before he becomes conscious of his own individuality these words come as a shock—
and more shocking because true:
"Practically incessant activity with little opportunity for reflection is of at least debatable value for the average student." And for the potential creative artist? "Is it reasonable to expect Creative Genius to germinate, take root, unfold the buds—to develop steadily, surely—in such soil, such atmosphere?" With anguish the student must realize that his four years at college are not favorable—even hostile—to what true genius lies latent in his breast.

Time is wanting: time to reflect,
to ponder, to dream; idle hours when fancy sets the spirit free. Can one imagine Plato or Shakespeare in a managership competition? The thought is absurd; and yet just as absurd is the ceaseless round of petty activities that make up "college life."

Harvard is fortunately free of many of the restraints and restrictions against which Mr. Rood justly complains. Mob spirit and the dreadful "drive" are not as irresistible as in other colleges; yet even here they are all too powerful. When bitterness and reproach are hurled at the "authorities" for these and other defects it is well to remember that much of what is worst at Harvard, as in all other colleges, is caused by the materialistic philosophy of the undergraduates themselves. The student body itself tends to crush genius and exalt conformity.

EARDS

A fool may wear a doleful lay
As light as floating gossamer.
As short as is a fleeting day
Or longer than a weary year:
For he knows not the highways,
The crooked, weaving byways.
The boon of joy, the curse of pain,
The drab despair of driving rain.

But men who strike the Old Fiend's
gonges
And ride Life's course a-cantor,
They sing the joyous, carefree songs,
And bandy blither banter;
For they have tread and long ways
The mazy weak-end strong ways.
Have joked with Nick, known love's delights,
Tossed sleepless through a thousand nights.

—Demi John.

A Fable

A poet, an economist, and a philosopher were in love with the same girl. The poet said to her:

When you I saw, my mind
did teeter.

I said, "I will go out and metre."

And now I woo with ragged line—

I ask you, sweetheart, to be mine.

The economist said:

Dearest, you are a capital girl. I want to have a monopoly on you.
Won't you give me your trust in proportion to the sacrifice I am willing to make? You are a creature of beautiful composite curves. I could not adopt the principle of substitution because of the quality of my desire, so do not use the principle of indifference to my complementary goods. I do not eat much and I can limit my corporation. Let us join our interest in each other by the the contract of marriage, and in that enterprise, we may derive a contractual income—as much as the traffic will bear.

The philosopher, then, knowing female vanity, said:

Dear girl, you are the most wonderful thing in the world. In my association with you my perception has shown me your true self, my instinctive neural activity wishes that the streams of your consciousness be joined, and my flat wills it. Your beautiful introvert nature gives me a marvelous sensation, and I want to see the habit. You are the most beautiful thing on earth, the most glorious of women. Will you let me worship you forever?

She, being a Vassar girl, turned them all down and went in for a career.

MORAL: The reason so few college girls get married is that they are harder to fool.
